Professional Publications and Resources

Members receive two inspiring on-line journals designed specifically for the green, healthy, and sustainable schools community. A content-rich archive of past journal issues is also available free to members.

GSNN's Green Schools Catalyst

4 issues per year

Stay current on trends, research, and best practices covering all three pillars of a green school: reducing environmental impact and cost; improving health and well-being; and increasing environmental and sustainability literacy. Articles written by thought leaders in curriculum, operations, and leadership. Inaugural issue coming in Autumn 2016.

Green Teacher

4 times per year

Green Teacher is published by a non-profit organization dedicated to helping educators, both inside and outside of schools, promote environmental awareness among young people aged 6-19. GSNN members receive a complimentary subscription to Green Teacher, a quarterly magazine that comes with unlimited access to over 300 articles and activities from 30+ digital back issues. Articles are categorized by topic and grade level, making it easy for you to find just what you need. Visit www.greenteacher.com to learn more.

Green Schools Conference and Expo

GSNN Members can register to attend the annual Green Schools Conference and Expo at a guaranteed Early Bird rate.

The Green Schools Conference and Expo (GSCE), formerly the Green Schools National Conference, brings together green schools thought leaders and champions, including educators, school administrators, nonprofit and corporate partners, and elected officials, to advance the shared vision of green schools for all within this generation. The conference is co-presented by the Center for Green Schools at the U.S. Green Building Council and GSNN.
